

Fuller Albright, MD
Interview Transcripts Regarding Fuller Albright
MC 2

0.8 c.f. in containers
(2 ½ manuscripts boxes)
Accession Numbers: 2000-8, 2001-15

Processed: 2001
By Jeff Mifflin

ACQUISITION: The files were transferred to the Archives from the office of Guillermo Sanchez, MD, by his secretary Anne Donovan in two batches in 2000 and 2001.

ACCESS: Consult the Archivist for further information.

COPYRIGHT: Consult the Archivist for further information.

Project History

For a number of years prior to his death in 2000 Guillermo Sanchez, MD, of the MGH medical staff had intended to create a book of reminiscences about Fuller Albright, MD, considered by many to be the father of modern endocrinology.

Albright was born in 1899 and died in 1969. Most of his active professional career was spent at MGH. (See attached memorial minute.)

Eleanor Pyle conducted interviews with dozens of people who had worked with Fuller Albright. The original intention was to publish a book consisting primarily of edited transcripts from these interviews, with an introductory overview by Dr. Sanchez and more technical introductory material by Eleanor Pyle and Lloyd Axelrod, MD. This plan was interrupted by the illness of Dr. Sanchez in 2000.

Box List

b. 1

List of interviewees (see also copy of list, attached to this finding aid)
Interview transcripts regarding Fuller Albright, MD, ca. 1977-1979

b.2

Interview transcripts, notes, and correspondence regarding Fuller Albright, MD, ca.
1977-2000

b.3

Interview transcripts, notes, and correspondence regarding Fuller Albright, MD, ca.
1977-2000